REALTOR, DAVID OLSON

Helping over 1,300 families make confident real estate decisions for over 10 years.

Understanding the recent trends of the past provides us with key insights for the future. As your trusted real estate advisor, my goal is to empower families to be able to make well informed and confident real estate decisions. This annual report of the Twin Cities and surrounding suburbs has been created to give a snapshot of what's happening in today's market and provide insights for putting a game plan together when its time to sell or buy your next home.

Over the last decade of helping over a thousand families, I take great pride in managing the details and providing a rewarding experience that everyone can be proud of. Feel free to share this guide with your friends or family who might be interested in selling or buying a home. If you refer them my way, I'll make sure to take great care of them!

LIST PRICE RECEIVED

Sellers received, on average, 98.3 percent of their original list price at sale, a year-over-year improvement of 0.9 percent. As sales prices are expected to increase further in 2018, this should bring original list price received at sale up as well. Known unknowns such as interest rates, the tax bill impact, global growth and political tides are rightfully garnering what's left of our time-challenged attention span. Rates are upwardly mobile with a data-dependent Federal Reserve, and 30-year mortgage rates could approach the 4.5–5.0 percent range by year-end.

The tax bill – a gentle jab in the shoulder here but a real wrench in the spokes on the coasts – diminishes two of the major tax advantages of real estate ownership: interest and tax deductibility. Some of those sins are atoned for by a higher standard deduction and more favorable tax treatment elsewhere (i.e., pass-through income, 1031 exchanges and a corporate rate cut).

As it turns out, neither party has a monopoly on bad legislation. And speaking of, the party in the White House tends to perform poorly during midterms. In light of a host of indicators and public sentiment, the 2018 midterms could mark shifting majorities in one or both legislative chambers.

On a more practical note, prices are likely to rise at a rate of 2–3 times inflation. Unit sales may face headwinds if sellers and builders can't increase inventory in the most in-demand price ranges. Days on market and absorption rates are likely to continue to decline as the ratio of sales to list price should rise further.

Healthy fundamentals like consumer confidence, unemployment, GDP, income growth and household formations should have a larger impact on housing than any cryptocurrencies or prefab green construction techniques you've never heard of. As usual, there's no shortage of distractions, but market sentiment is mostly positive. Here's to a prosperous 2018!

Market Report Highlights

SALES

Pending sales increased slightly by 0.5 percent, landing at 61,277 to close out the year. Closed sales increased similarly by 0.2 percent to finish 2017 at 61,168.

LISTINGS

Year-over-year, the number of homes available for sale was lower by 27.5 percent. There were 6,830 active listings at the end of 2017. New listings decreased by 2.2 percent to finish the year at 76,159. Home supply was once again lower than desired in 2017.

DISTRESSED PROPERTIES

The foreclosure market has dwindled from its peak several years ago. In 2017, the percentage of closed sales that were either foreclosure or short sale decreased by 43.4 percent to end the year at 4.2 percent of the market.

PRICES

Home prices were up compared to last year. The overall median sales price increased 7.0 percent to $246,000 for the year. Prices are expected to rise at a slow rate in 2018. Single Family home prices were up 6.8 percent compared to last year, and Townhouse-Condo home prices were up 7.2 percent.
